CONTRIBUTORS TO THIS NUMBER

---

WILLIAM ROSCOE THAYER

was fitted for college under a tutor in Europe and graduated at Harvard in 1881. His Life and Times of Cavour, and Life and Letters of John Hay, are reckoned masterpieces in the field of biographical literature. He has been a frequent contributor to THE REVIEW.

JOHN JAY CHAPMAN,

an essayist of distinction among America's men of letters, is poet as well. His volumes are numerous, the more recent being Deutschland über Alles, and Greek Genius and Other Essays.

BARBARA SPOFFORD MORGAN,

a graduate of Bryn Mawr College, is the author of a valuable book on the training of defectives. Mrs. Morgan has had a wide experience in industrial legislation, and presents some pertinent suggestions for reconstruction work for the soldiers.

VERNON KELLOGG,

whose service in the food distribution in Belgium and Northern France in 1915 proved him a skilled executive, is a scientist of distinction. He has been Professor of Zoölogy at Leland Stanford University since 1894, and his leisure has been occupied in the writing of many books relating to his subject.

ARTHUR HUNT CHUTE,

is one of the few surviving original officers of the famous First Canadian Contingent and, after two years' fighting, was invalided from service. Mr. Chute served as War correspondent in the Balkan War in 1912-13, and in 1914 was with General Funston in Mexico. His writings have won for him high praise, notably his recent volume, The Real Front.
